Are 'solopreneurs' happier?

More than 2,000 people were polled globally and found that solopreneurs were considerably more likely to: * Feel engaged and energised in their work. * Believe they are respected and valued for their strengths * Describe themselves as flourishing at work over the last 3 months. This aligns with research suggesting that using our strengths – those things we're good at and actually enjoy doing – helps us feel more confident, energised and engaged in our work.
